

Showreel

Description

default watermark

default watermark

UNDERWATER VIDEO SERVICES

Charles Maxwell is an experienced underwater videographer based in Cape Town, South Africa. Charles has been a lover of the marine environment for over 40 years and started his career in underwater cinematography in 1987 when he worked on Television in filming Le Souffle du Dragon, a story of discovery and exploration of a huge underground lake in Madagascar. Charles has worked with many production companies and founded Underwater Video Services in 1990 to offer marine videography to the television industry.

Charles was a 2002 Primetime Emmy Award winner for Outstanding Cinematography for Non-Fiction (Single or Multi-Cam) for his work done on the television series for The Blue Planet: Seas of Life, produced by the BBC and Channel 4. In 2006 Charles filmed rays feeding on the seabed for BBC's Planet Earth: Shallow Seas.

Date Created

July 19, 2022

Author

kerryn

default watermark